

Flying has always one place for me to relax and enjoy the quite, to be able to get away from it all, to read or what ever. But you know how close quarters it can be and to have to listen to some one who thinks they are so important that they can't wait three hours talking on the phone is outrageous. Phones should be in private.